

Dan Schweitzer

Great news for all new or rusty square dancers. You now have, at your disposal, any time of the day or night, a ... Support Line!

With your BlueTooth enabled, hands free, cell-phone headset, just speed dial our number right in the middle of a tip:

Support: Hello, this is the DanDan Square Dance Support Line, my name is Rishi, how may I help you this evening?

Rusty: Quick! What's Tag the Line?

Support: I understand that you desire directions for Tag the Line. First, may I please have your name and square dance club?

Rusty: The name's Rusty, of the Timberline Toppers. Please hurry. Oh darn, we just crashed.

Support: Sorry to hear about the crash, Rusty. I hope everyone is OK. Who is your caller tonight? You can find that information on his or her lapel pin.

Rusty: He doesn't have a lapel pin. In fact, he doesn't have lapels.

Support: Look behind the caller, is there a banner with his name?

Rusty: I can't see around the caller.

Support: Thank you Rusty, of the Timberline Toppers, I understand that you are dancing to Bear

Miller. Also, that you desire instructions for Tag the Line. Is that right?

Rusty: Ah, ya. Well, it was right. Now I'd rather have instructions for CrossFire.

Support: Thank you Rusty, I understand that you now desire instructions for CrossFire. Are you currently in a two-faced line?

Rusty: A what?

Support: Couples in a two-faced line are side-by-side, with one couple facing the wall opposite the wall faced by the other couple.

Rusty: Uh? Oh darn, we crashed again. Now, we're just facing each other. This isn't working, Rishi.

Support: I'm sorry that I was not able to provide instructions to your satisfaction. Would you like to talk to my supervisor? Please hold.

Rusty: Uh ... no. Well OK.

Support: Hello Rusty, of the Timberline Toppers, my name is Anshul. Rishi tells me that you are dancing to Bear Miller, and desire instructions for Tag the Line and CrossFire. Perhaps I could be of assistance. Are you in a two-faced line?

Rusty: (inaudible whimper).

Support: OK Rusty, I'll take that as an inaudible whimper. But first, while we have you on the line, Rusty, I see that your subscription is about to expire, in early 2017. Would you like to renew at this time?